

Manifesto

I was surprised to find out that there was only one male student participating in the Student Union. Recognizing the need for an inclusive student council, I am determined to fix the lack of male representation. Voting for me is a step toward promoting diverse representation in the union, which will encourage greater involvement and perspectives from male students.

I personally didn't know that there was a business student council president and found out that most of my peers were in the same boat. So, I am committed to enhancing the visibility and accessibility of our student council. Therefore, I want to dedicate my time to increasing the awareness and accessibility of our student council, if elected. I want to prioritize clear communication and active engagement. I will aim to ensure that every student knows about my role and feels comfortable to express their opinions, concerns, and ideas to me. By providing regular updates to peers. A goal of mine is to be a council president who is visible and approachable.

During my first year here at Regents, the university arranged a finance professional speaker to come talk about "finance". She was unfairly questioned about her gender rather than her substantial achievements. The speaker touched upon three figures throughout the entire presentation. To address this, I am committed to utilize my influence to bring in more speakers who will enlighten us about finance, steering away from stereotypes and promoting insightful discussions.

I possess excellent communication skills developed through the years of experience I have in theatre. This has equipped me with the confidence to effectively convey ideas and engage with diverse audiences. In addition, I can connect with a wide range of individuals from different backgrounds as I am fluent in Norwegian, French, and English, and proficient in Spanish, German, and Swedish. I am eager to contribute to the success of the student union. A goal of mine is to be an approachable council president that is actively listening to my peers.
